What is Patient 1st?

Patient 1st helps you get the health care you need

- You and your children will have your own personal doctor or clinic, close to your home.
- You can call your personal doctor, anytime day or night. The phone will be answered 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Someone will tell you what to do.
- Your personal doctor will be the doctor or clinic that you and your children will go to for most of your health care.
- All your medical records will be at one place.
- You will always call your personal doctor first before you go to the emergency room, unless you have a real emergency.

Your personal doctor will give you most of your health care

You will see your personal doctor for most of your health care. Except in a few cases, you will always call your personal doctor first for health care, including:

- Doctor visits
- Well child health screenings (checkups)
- Outpatient hospital visits
- Visits to a rural health or federal clinic
- Visits to a public health department
- Non-routine medical eye exams
- Speech, physical or occupational therapy
- Visits to a chiropractor or podiatrist
- Hearing exams given by an audiologist
- Private duty nursing
- Durable medical equipment and supplies

If you need special tests or care from another doctor, your personal doctor will refer you to that doctor. A referral is an okay from your personal doctor for you to go to another doctor, clinic or place.

If you go to a doctor who is not your personal doctor, you may have to pay for the visit.

Some things are the same under Patient 1st

- You will still need to show your Medicaid card when you go for care.
- You will have all the same benefits as the regular Medicaid program. This means you will have the same number of doctor visits and hospital days as other people in Alabama who have Medicaid.
- You will still get your medicine from the drug store.
- You are free to choose where you go to get birth control (family planning).

There are some important differences under Patient 1st

- You will pick one doctor to be your personal doctor all the time, unless you call Medicaid and change doctors.
- Your personal doctor will send you to another doctor or place if you need tests or care he or she cannot give you.
- You will call your personal doctor before you go to the emergency room unless you have a real emergency. Remember, a real emergency is when you have a serious health problem that can cause permanent injury or death.

Referrals

A referral is an okay from your personal doctor to see another doctor or clinic for special care or tests.

Talk with your doctor if you think you need special tests. If you go to another doctor without a referral, you may have to pay for that visit.

Medicaid will pay for a doctor visit only when the care is given, set up or approved by your personal doctor.

Your doctor must okay your emergency room visit or Medicaid may not pay for it.

You must not have used up all your doctor visits for Medicaid to pay for a referral visit. The treatment must also be a covered service for Medicaid to pay for it.

What you need to know about keeping your doctor appointments

- Always keep or cancel your appointments. When you make an appointment to see your personal doctor, you should keep it or cancel it.
- If you cannot go to an appointment, call. If something happens and you cannot go to your appointment, call your doctor's office and let them know.
- Let your doctor know if you will be late for your appointment. If you are not able to get to your appointment on time, call and let them know you will be late.
- Cancel an appointment 24 hours before. If you need to cancel your appointment, call your doctor and cancel at least 24 hours before the appointment. Even if you cannot give 24 hours notice, still call and cancel the appointment.

More about keeping your doctor appointments

- If you don't have a way to the appointment, call. If you need a ride to your doctor appointment, call the Non-Emergency Transportation Hotline at 1-800-204-3728 for help with a ride. You need to call at least 5 days before your appointment.
- When you make an appointment and don't go, you keep another person from seeing the doctor. The person who might not be able to see the doctor might be you! Call if you cannot come to your appointment!
- Not showing up for your appointments may mean that your doctor can ask Medicaid to find you another Patient 1st doctor. If you miss a lot of appointments your doctor can ask that you be assigned to another doctor.

If you have a medical condition that requires you to see your doctor regularly and you miss your appointments or don't keep your appointments, your doctor has the right to dismiss you. This means that you will have to find another doctor who will agree to treat you. If this becomes a serious problem, it could cause you to lose your Medicaid.

When you are part of Patient 1st and Medicaid, you have rights:

Medicaid is a voluntary program. This means that you agree to be a part of Medicaid and to follow Medicaid's rules. This also means you have the following rights when you are on Medicaid's Patient 1st program.

You have the right:

- To be able to get in touch with your personal doctor or another qualified person chosen by your doctor 24 hours a day.
- To pick your own personal doctor from the list of doctors who see Patient 1st patients from your county.
- To change your personal doctor.
- To go to any doctor or clinic for birth control (family planning) without getting approval from your personal doctor.
- To get care right away if you have a real emergency.
- To be told what your illness or medical problem is and what the doctor thinks is the best way to treat it.
- To decide about your health care and to give your permission before the start of treatment or surgery.
- To have the personal information in your medical records kept private.
- To be treated with respect, dignity and privacy.
- To report to Medicaid any complaint or grievance about your doctor or your medical care.

When you are part of Patient 1st and Medicaid, you have duties:

Medicaid is a voluntary program. This means that you agree to be a part of Medicaid and to follow Medicaid's rules. This also means you have the following duties when you are on Medicaid's Patient 1st program.

You have the duty:

- To follow the rules for Medicaid and Patient 1st.
- To call your personal doctor first before going to the emergency room, or to other doctors or clinics.
- To give as many facts as you can to help your doctor or other health care provider take care of you. For example, it is important to your health to tell your doctor about all the medicines you take. (You may want to take all your medicine bottles with you to the doctor.)
- To call your doctor or clinic and let them know if you cannot come to an appointment.
- To follow the instructions you get from your personal doctor or clinic.
- To ask questions about anything you do not understand.
- To follow the rules set up by your personal doctor for his or her office.

Some rules your doctor might have:

- 1) Treat others with respect and courtesy. This means showing respect and courtesy to the doctor, his or her employees, and other patients and their families. This also means you are to answer questions with courtesy, follow directions and otherwise do what is asked of you while you are in the doctor's office.
- 2) Do not bring food or drink into the office.
- 3) Bring no more than one visitor with you to wait in the office.
- 4) Pay for any medical services not covered by Medicaid.

Your Patient 1st personal doctor has the right to ask you to follow the rules for the office or clinic.

This also applies to any visitors or relatives who come with you or your child. If you (or others with you) do not follow the rules, your doctor has the right to ask that you (or your child) be assigned to another Patient 1st personal doctor. If you continue not to follow the rules, you may not be able to find a doctor who will see you (or your child). This may cause you to have to pay for your medical care. Serious problems, such as acting in a rude, mean or threatening way to the doctor or to a person who works for the doctor, may result in your losing your Medicaid. This includes fighting, using profanity or other abusive words, carrying a weapon while at the doctor's office or being under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

When you are sick or hurt

It's normal to worry when you or someone close to you is sick or hurt. Sometimes it is hard to know what to do. You may wonder what your choices are.

Because you are worried, you may want to go right away to the emergency room. The emergency room (ER) may not be the best place to go. You may wait a long time. You may have to fill out a lot of papers. You may have to have extra tests since your health records are back in your doctor's office. And, if the health problem is not a real emergency, you may have to pay for the ER visit.

If you don't go to the emergency room, what can you do?

You have several good choices:

- Follow the directions that your doctor gave you;
- Call the doctor to find out what to do; or
- Make an appointment to come to the doctor's office for a visit.

If you are not sure what to do, call your doctor's office. Your Patient 1st personal doctor (or a qualified person chosen by your doctor) can be reached by telephone 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Emergency Room is for serious health problems

The emergency room (ER) is for serious health problems that can cause lasting injury or death. The ER is NOT for health problems that the doctor can take care of in his or her office.

When there is a real emergency, you should:

- 1) Call your personal doctor first or have someone call for you; then
- 2) Go to the nearest emergency room; or
- 3) Call 911

Calling your doctor first can save time and may shorten your wait at the hospital. This allows your doctor to call ahead so the ER is ready.

When you call your doctor, you may find that you do not need to go to the ER. It may be that you can get care more quickly at your doctor's office because all of your health records are there.

Calling your doctor first may also save you money. Your doctor must okay your emergency room visit. And, if your health problem is not a real emergency, you may have to pay for the ER visit.

If you are not sure what to do, call your doctor first.

Calling your doctor

You can call your Patient 1st personal doctor anytime day or night, seven days per week. Your doctor's phone will be answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Your doctor or another qualified person chosen by your doctor will tell you what to do.

Call your doctor during office hours for help with routine problems such as a baby who will not eat a certain food, getting medicine refilled, teething, colds, rashes, upset stomach or other smaller health problems. These problems can be handled best during office hours since all of your records are at the office. These are problems that can wait until the doctor's office opens again.

Call your doctor after office hours and on the weekend for problems that cannot wait until the doctor's office opens again.

When you call your doctor:

- Be patient. Your doctor may not be able to call you back right away. If it is during office hours, your doctor may be taking care of other patients. If it is after hours, he may not be close to a telephone. If you do not hear from your doctor in about one hour, it is okay to call him or her again. Always tell the office if you think it is an emergency.

- Be ready to tell about your health problem.

Some things your doctor will want to know:

- How long have you been sick or hurt?
- Do you have pain? Where is it?
- Do you have a fever? What is your temperature
- What medicines do you take?

- Be ready to write down what the doctor or nurse says to do.

- Know what drug store you want to use in case the doctor wants to call in some medicine. Have the drug store's phone number ready to give the doctor. This will help you get your medicine faster.

- Listen carefully and ask questions about anything you do not understand. Be sure you know what you are supposed to do.

When your newborn baby is sick

Newborn babies (babies who are less than one month old) have special health needs. Before you leave the hospital or when you take your baby for his or her first checkup, find out how your doctor wants you to handle any problems that come up.

If you are a new parent, you may feel scared if your baby seems sick. In most cases, you can take care of your baby's health needs at home. If you have a problem or question about taking care of your baby, call your doctor during office hours.

There are times you should always call your doctor about your newborn. Try to call during office hours whenever possible. Call your baby's personal doctor if he or she is less than one month old and:

- Has a fever of any kind
- Won't breastfeed or take a bottle of formula
- Vomits (throws up) a lot over several hours
- Has diarrhea (many watery bowel movements) in a short period of time
- Cries for a long time for no reason
- Has any yellow coloring of his or her skin or eyes
- Has trouble breathing
- Seems sick or acts strange

If you are not sure, call your doctor.

Always call your doctor first before taking your newborn to the emergency room (ER).

When your older child is sick

Almost all children get sick at one time or another. Colds, ear infections and stomach viruses are common, especially in younger children. Children often hurt themselves as they play.

Most of the time, you can care for your child's health problems at home. Other times, you may need to call the doctor for advice or to make an appointment.

When you take your child for his or her checkups, find out how you should take care of your child when he or she has:

- Fever
- Stomach ache or pain
- Earache
- Vomiting (throwing up)
- Diarrhea (many watery bowel movements in a short time)
- Colds and sore throats
- Rashes
- Poisoning
- Cuts, burns and scrapes

It is best to call about your child's health problems during office hours. This is usually the quickest way to get help.

Always call your child's personal doctor before taking your child to the emergency room (ER). If your child's health problem is not an emergency, you may have to pay for the ER visit.

Be ready for health problems at home

Almost everyone gets sick or hurt at home at one time or another. These are problems that you can take care of most of the time. Be ready for small health problems by having these things where you can find them quickly:

- Thermometer to check for fever
- Hydrogen peroxide to clean cuts and scrapes
- Antibiotic or first aid cream to put on cuts and scrapes
- Anti-itch cream for small rashes
- Syrup of ipecac (in case of a poisoning)
- Non-aspirin pain reliever (acetaminophen) for adults and children
- Stick-on bandages
- Medicine for upset stomach and diarrhea
- Ice pack
- Heating pad

You can get these items at the drug store for very little cost. Having these things at home will save you time and trouble when you or your child is hurt or sick. Ask your doctor if there are other things he or she would like you to keep on hand.

Taking medicine the right way - for yourself

If your doctor gives you a prescription, be sure to take all of it (even if you get better or seem well) unless the doctor tells you differently. NEVER give your prescription to another person.

Whether your doctor prescribes a medicine for you or you buy it off the shelf at the drug store, be sure you follow your doctor's instructions exactly. If you don't understand, ask! (For example, ask the doctor or nurse what it means when the bottle says, "three times a day." Does it mean three times a day while I'm awake? Or, does it mean every eight hours?)

Give the medicine time to work – It may take a day or two before you start to feel better.

If you are pregnant - Always talk with your doctor before taking a prescription medicine or an over the counter medicine. A safe amount of medicine for mom may be too much for baby.

Taking medicine the right way - for children

If your doctor prescribes medicine for your child, be sure to give the right amount. Do not guess at how much to give because it could be dangerous, especially for a young baby.

For example: One teaspoon is equal to 5 cc or 5 ml. This is not the same as a teaspoon that you eat with. If you do not measure the medicine out, your child may not get all the medicine he or she is supposed to or your child may get too much medicine.

Don't put medicine in your baby's bottle because your baby may not get all the medicine he or she should get.

Whether your doctor prescribes a medicine for your child or you buy it off the shelf at the drug store, be sure you follow your doctor's instructions exactly. If you don't understand, ask! (For example, ask the doctor or nurse what it means when the bottle says, "three times a day." Does it mean three times a day while the child is awake? Or, does it mean every eight hours?)

More about taking medicine the right way - for children

When your child takes medicine the right way it will help him or her get well or feel better more quickly.

Give the medicine time to work - It may take a day or two before your child starts to feel better.

If you have trouble getting your child to take medicine, call your doctor during office hours for help.

If your doctor gives you a prescription for your child, be sure to give all of it (even if your child gets better or seems well) unless the doctor tells you differently. NEVER give one person's prescription to another person.

Remember:

- Give medicine the right way – exactly the way the doctor prescribed it. Don't double the dose just because your child seems sicker than last time.
- Never let children take medicine by themselves.
- Never call medicine “candy” to get your child to take it. Your child may remember you called it candy and take the medicine without your knowing it.
